RUSSIAN ARMS REPULSE GERMANS BEFORE GATES OF THE POLISH CAPITAL

PETROGRAD SAYS THREE TOWNS HAVE BEEN RE-CAPTURED

Calculations of the German Staff Thought Confused by the Stand Made by the Slavs

PETROGRAD, July 29.—Russian arms withstood three furious attacks by Field Marshal Von Mackensen's German troops near Hrubisof, and by a counter offensive swept forward irresistibly recapturing three villages from the enemy. The official war office statement today related this incident to show that the German war was breaking fruitlessly on the solid rock of Russian defense.

The enemy continued to attack practically throughout the territory from the Wiepra to the Bug. It was on Wednesday night that the Russians captured the villages of Kaspow, Maidan, and Ostrowsky, with a total of 1,300 German prisoners. Continuing the war office says:

Persistent enemy attacks continue north of Stepankowitz. We repulsed three furious attacks designed to break our front inflicting heavy losses on the enemy.

South of Sokal (Galicia) we repulsed the enemy who crossed the retortzshite on Wednesday morning. In these actions we took numerous prisoners. The enemy has brought up reinforcements.

Fighting of severest intensity continuing on the upper Bug, marked by heavy artillery firing. Along the Narew the enemy is attacking also with heavy artillery.

In the vicinity of the mouth of the Narew a portion of the enemy captured our trenches, counter attacking with bayonet charges, we repulsed him.

On the right bank of the Narew the enemy's offensive is fruitless.

London Pleased
LONDON, July 29.—For the first time since the great German drive on Warsaw began, Grand Duke Nicholas forces have established an ascendancy over the invaders. This is London's interpretation of the official statement today of war office at Petrograd.

The point of ascendancy is along the battle front that General Von Mackensen has been constantly pushing forward southeast of Warsaw, as part of the Austro-German plan to outflank the army defending Warsaw, which—as German generals saw it—the inevitable retreat of the Russians toward Petrograd began.

Even if this retreat becomes necessary, London today believes the grand duke's army will make a clear path. In other words, the gigantic enveloping movement is defeated by the ability of the Russians to hold Von Mackensen.

Troops Withdrawn
The Petrograd statement also throws light, it is considered, on the failure of the Germans to take Banzorod, already surrounded, according to their own reports and ready to capitulate. It is evident Field Marshal Von Hindenburg has withdrawn part of the attacking force at Banzorod and sent aid to Von Mackensen.

Warsaw Believed Safe
London views the situation in Poland with equanimity. There is a strong belief that Warsaw itself may not fall into the hands of the Germans, but in any event the surrounding of the Russian army is regarded as out of the question. The grand duke is now in position, provided he continues to hold his own against Von Mackensen, to retreat in good order to Brest Litowsk. The latter is more strongly fortified than Warsaw, and is the center of supplies for the Russian campaign in Poland.

Berlin Uneasy
BY J. W. T. MASON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, July 29.—The slow advance the Germans have been making since they crossed the Narew river, to the north of Warsaw, is undoubtedly a matter for uneasiness at Berlin. Nearly a week has passed since the elaborate Russian defenses along the Narew fell into German possession and yet the Germans have been unable to make any appreciable advance across the few miles that separate the Narew from

COURTS TO FORCE SCORE TO CONNECT WITH CITY SEWER

Health Department Turns Over 22 Names to City Attorney for Prosecution Today

HAVE IGNORED MANY WARNINGS

Health Commissioner Furstman Says Some of Citizens in List Have Been Delaying Two Years

Legal action is pending against twenty-two La Crosse taxpayers who have ignored repeated instructions from the city health department to connect their homes with sewers. Health Commissioner J. M. Furstman this morning turned over the names of nine such persons to City Attorney J. E. Higbee for action. Thirteen names were given to the city attorney two days ago.

In some cases, Dr. Furstman said, the persons against whom legal action is now threatened have been postponing sewer connection for more than two years. All, he said, had been warned repeatedly, but had ignored the notice.

"The vaults at these places are in bad shape," Dr. Furstman said this morning. "We have exhausted every effort to have the owners obey the law. Our only recourse is legal action."

City Attorney Higbee will give the delinquent citizens a last chance, he told Dr. Furstman. He plans to write them that court action will be taken unless they take steps at once to connect with the sewers.

BECKER PREPARES FOR DEATH CHAIR HOPE NEARLY GONE

Condemned New York Police Lieutenant Loses Fight for Another Trial

KEEPS UP BRAVE FRONT

Prisoner Prepared for the Death Chair and Is Given Doom Man's Garments

ALBANY, N. Y., July 29.—Governor Whitman will see Mrs. Charles Becker at the Nelson house in Poughkeepsie at 6 p. m. This announcement was made here late this afternoon from the executive chamber. Indications are that Mrs. Becker and Attorney Johnston will leave here for Poughkeepsie on the 3:55 train.

Mrs. Becker, accompanied by John E. Johnston, of her husband's counsel, arrived in Albany shortly after noon today to make an eleventh hour attempt to save her husband from the electric chair.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 29.—"You can tell the world that Charlie Becker will die like a man. That's all."

Becker has lost his last fight. With the above words he resigned himself to his fate today, even while his lawyers were feverishly groping for some legal angle on which they could hope to turn the case and cheat the gaunt chair in which he will die at 5:45 a. m. tomorrow. Even his wife, whose remarkable nerve has never faltered throughout his three years' fight for life, was in a state of collapse today. Her nerve broke when relatives told her at midnight Justice John Ford refused to grant her husband a new trial.

Prison officials this morning began preparing Becker for the ordeal. For the first time since he entered the death house he was stripped of his civilian clothes and given the black garb of a prisoner about to die. He put on the loose fitting, Chinese looking costume without comment.

Shortly after Becker had eaten his breakfast this morning he was taken to the bathroom for his last shower. While he was away his narrow cell was given a close search to make certain he has not secreted anything with which he might commit suicide. His books were taken out, as were his papers, pen and other belongings.

Keeps Wife's Picture
But one thing was left in his cell. Hung on the wall at the head of his cot is a picture of his wife. Becker did not ask to have it left. The guards merely looked at it, then looked at each other and went on.

From the bath Becker was taken to the prison barber. His hair was cropped close and a little round spot on the crown of his head shaved. It is here that the metal electrode will fit snugly, close to the brain. Becker went through the ministrations calmly.

Becker's friends and those who have been closest to him during his long stay in Sing Sing are confident that he will go to the chair without a tremor. They also believe that he will make a statement as he takes his seat in the chair, protesting his innocence. There are rumors that he

GORDON AND VAN AUKEN STILL IN LINE FOR TITLE

Playing of La Crosse Men a Feature of Morning Program of State Tourney

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 29.—(Special.)—The playing of La Crosse men this morning furnished the chief feature of the play in the state golf tournament, Robert Gordon returning a score of 73, the fourth best of the entire tournament, beating F. E. Dutcher of Milwaukee 4 up and 5 to play. His score out was 4, 5, 3, 4, 4, 6, 3, 4—38; in 3, 3, 4, 4, 3, 5, 5, 4, 2—35—73.

George Van Auker, although not playing so fast a game as Gordon, beat Rockwell Hinkley of the Blue Mounds club 4 up and 2 to play. He did not finish his round but went out in 36, four under bogey and was one under bogey to the sixteenth tee. This would have scored him 75.

The men, the only players in the championship division, are paired with John Reid, Jr., of Racine, and T. C. McLaughlin of Blue Mounds for the afternoon's play.

F. H. Hankerson was defeated in the president's cup play by M. A. Carroll of Shoshoni, playing 82.

It was Van Auker, youthful golfer of La Crosse, to defeat former state champion Frank W. Jacobs of Madison yesterday. He beat Jacobs five up and three to play for a score of 163. Jacobs returned with 172.

Charged By Jury With Manslaughter

CAPT. HARRY PEDERSON
Commander of the Eastland who was named along with five others responsible for the horror of Saturday in which more than twelve hundred lives were lost.

JURORS BITTERLY ARRAIGN EXISTING INSPECTION LAWS

Coroner's Jury in Eastland Case Returns Verdict of Manslaughter for Six Men

GREED FOR GOLD RESPONSIBLE

Officers of Company and Inspectors Bound Over to County Grand Jury

CHICAGO, July 29.—With six men held to the county grand jury as the result of a coroner's inquest to fix the blame for 1,200 to 1,400 deaths on the Eastland, presentation of testimony was begun today in two new probes.

They were the formal investigation by the government steamboat inspection service, headed by Secretary of Commerce Redfield in person, and the first session of the grand jury. United States District Attorney Clyne planned personally to present evidence and examine witnesses before the latter body.

The verdict of the coroner's jury bitterly arraigned federal laws which permitted inspectors arbitrarily to increase a boat's passenger carrying capacity with regard only to nine feet of space for each person and no regard for stability. The jurors found that not only do existing laws present loopholes for gold greedy ship owners, but that even these laws are many times laxly administered.

The inquest verdict, handed down early today, follows:

The Verdict
"It is our judgment that the steamship Eastland was both improperly constructed for the service employed, and improperly loaded, operated and maintained, and that the parties named are responsible."

"We recommend to the state's attorney and the grand jury that an investigation be made of the corporation or individuals responsible for the management of this boat with a view to discovering whether other members of the incorporation or other individuals were responsible for acts, contributing to this disaster."

"We further recommend that the state's attorney and grand jury investigate carefully the circumstances of construction of this boat, to ascertain if there can be found legal methods by which those responsible for its defects in construction can be held accountable."

"We further recommend that the state's attorney and the grand jury investigate the details of purchase and sale of the different common carriers which have owned the Eastland with a view to determining, if possible, whether knowledge of the instability of this boat and the hazards attending thereon, have been known to the seller and have not been disclosed by the sellers to the purchasers of this boat, and whether the purchasers of this boat have discharged their duties as common carriers in investigating the stability and freedom from hazard of the steamship Eastland."

"It is our opinion that the federal government system of permitting the construction of vessels for use by common carriers is unscientific and a menace to the public safety. There is not now, nor has there ever been,

GERMAN-AMERICAN SITUATION TAKES ON SERIOUS ASPECT

Feeling Extremely Grave in Berlin as Gerard Refuses to Further Discuss Lusitania Case

INCIDENT CONSIDERED CLOSED

Gerard Takes Position That as Wilson Has Refused to Compromise He Will Stand Firm

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, via The Hague, July 29.—There is no chance to doubt that the situation growing out of the new differences between the United States and Germany is regarded here as extremely serious. Americans in Berlin who are in touch with the American embassy know that the feeling there has become extremely grave.

Ambassador Gerard in his dealings with the foreign office has adopted a firm attitude, indicating, in effect, that the Lusitania incident is closed as far as he, speaking for the United States government is concerned; that he expects to have nothing further to communicate to Germany on the subject.

This attitude on the part of the ambassador is new. Gerard, who was in closest touch with developments both here and at home, made strong efforts in the direction of an agreement between the two governments, I learned today. He even sent to Washington, following the dispatch of the last German note, several propositions urging a compromise and pointing out the possibilities for an amicable understanding.

Gerard now, however, has taken the position that inasmuch as President Wilson declined to commit the United States to such compromises, he, as ambassador, must stand rigidly by the declared position of the United States.

I have heard many expressions of regret that Gerard was unable to see the Kaiser in an attempt to clear up the situation. He, of course, now considers the time past for such a conference with the emperor.

It developed today that it has been a long time since Ambassador Gerard saw Chancellor Bethman Von Hollweg, secretary for foreign affairs.

It was known today that Ambassador Gerard had cabled the state department requesting hereafter that he be notified by cable of the departure of American steamers "on a course that would carry them through the war zone."

At the present time Gerard receives notification of such sailings by mail. Because of the infrequency of mail communication with the United States and past experiences where the mails have been held up by allied warships, the suggestion was made here today that possibly a mail notice of the Leelanaw's voyage had not reached Gerard and that the German submarine commander was therefore not apprised of her identity, her cargo, nor her mission, and that this lack of information may have been the cause of torpedoing the ship.

If Gerard received cables notifying of the sailing of American ships, he could telegraph it at once to Wilhelmshaven, where the information could be given German submarine commanders.

WOOD NYMPH ATTIIRED IN NIGHT CAP SEEN FROM FLYING TRAIN

Has Sparta, a staid city whose good name has never been tarnished by ill repute, a little Garden of Eden not far from its outskirts—a spot in which the inhabitants care as little for clothing as did the residents of the place in which the human race is said to have originated—where wood-nymphs play in sylvan dells as in the days of Homer?

Passengers on Milwaukee eastbound train No. 6 Monday afternoon were transfixed in their seats—struck dumbfounded—as the nude figure of a beautiful young woman stepped from the covering of a clump of silver maples close to the right-of-way of the Milwaukee tracks and strolled leisurely across the soft grass while the train sped past. Passengers on that side of the train turned in their seats. A sweet smile flashed back to them, and the sight had passed.

But the second's glance was enough to make sure there was no delusion. It was a real flesh-and-blood young woman. Passengers say she was attired in a white night cap with a blue ribbon—that was all—just a night cap.

The appearance of the human wood-nymph was verified today by Mrs. E. J. Brown, 917 Avon street, a passenger on the train.

"The train was about three miles east of Sparta and in the vicinity of Camp Robinson," says Mrs. Brown, "when the young woman appeared. To the best of my judgment, she was about 20 years of age."

The scene of the picture which met the eyes of other La Crosse people on the train was perfect enough for the severest of art critics. Low bushes bordered a clump of beautiful maples. The enclosure where the apparition walked was small. According to the passengers, the young woman gave appearances of having just awakened from her noonday siesta. City Attorney Z. S. Rice of Sparta was notified of the vision today. He concluded that the matter was out of his jurisdiction and it was referred to District Attorney T. P. Abel of Monroe county, who is today endeavoring to identify the clothesless party.

Rumors circulated in Sparta identify the young woman as being of rather "chunky" build, with long, flowing auburn hair.

The matter remained a mystery at press time.

TROOPS FROM CRUISER WASHINGTON PUT STOP TO HAITI REVOLUTION

Cartloads of Dead Flies Removed by City White Wings

White wings in the employ of the city had a busy time this morning sweeping up the bodies of myriads of "fish flies" which swept down upon the lights of the city in countless swarms last night. Cartloads of the insects were taken to the dump when the sweepers had removed the masses of bodies which were clustered under all the arc lights at dawn today.

At Fourth and Main streets an employee of the Fred Hell shoe store cleared the sidewalks with a snow shovel about midnight. The white-painted walls of the Hayes Transfer company barn at 10 o'clock were blackened by the swarms of flies attracted by its light.

U. S. BLUEJACKETS ARRIVE TO QUIET ANGRY REVOLTERS

Lust of Revolutionists Apparently Satisfied by the Murder of President and Governor

CONSULATES ARE SURROUNDED

Body of President Guillaume Buried by Women After Lying for Hours Uncared for

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The assassination of President Guillaume of Haiti, after a mob had dragged him from his refuge in the French legation at Port au Prince, threatened today to add awkward relations with France to the United States' many international difficulties.

The Gallic government has given no intimation, through its ambassador here, concerning the action it proposed to take.

As a result there were many smisms that the French intend, America having failed to prevent the attack on their legation, to demand satisfaction on their own account.

PORT AU PRINCE, July 29.—Haiti's bloody revolutionists were cowed and inactive today. United States marines and bluejackets from the cruiser Washington, numbering 500 men, surrounded the United States legation, the French legation and the United States consulate and the collier Jason was on the way from Guantanamo, Cuba, with reinforcements.

The revolutionists' lust for revenge, following the execution of 160 prisoners by order of Governor Oscar and President Guillaume, seems to have spent itself in the killing of Governor Oscar and the president. The governor's body remained all night in front of the Dominican consulate, where he had been stood against the wall and shot. Pitying women finally buried the mutilated corpse of President Guillaume in a cemetery outside the capital.

No resistance was offered at the landing of the marines and bluejackets. A detachment of the latter were placed in the Hotel Montaine, overlooking the city and bay. Foreigners came from behind closed doors to cheer the United States troops as they marched through the streets.

U. S. Marines in Control.
WASHINGTON July 29.—American marines are now in control of the two important ports of the Island of Haiti—Port au Prince and Cape Haitien.

Consul Livingston reported to the state department today that a marine guard from the U. S. S. Eagle landed at Cape Haitien Wednesday night to protect the French consulate which was menaced by mobs.

Officials said there was no disposition to interfere with Haiti's internal affairs; the people were considered entitled to overthrow their government as often as they choose; even such incidents as the assassination of President Guillaume and General Oscar were considered Haiti's business—not the United States', but—foreigners' rights must be respected.

This, it was pointed out, the Haitians had failed to do. They invaded the French legation to get and kill Guillaume and the Dominican legation to do the same thing to General Oscar.

Moreover foreign business interests were said to have suffered severely from the continual political disturbances in the republic.

LATE FIGHT STARTED
PHOENIX, Ariz., July 29.—An eleventh hour fight was begun here today to save five convicted murderers scheduled to be the victims of a hanging bee at the Florence state penitentiary Friday. Applications for writs of habeas corpus were filed with Judge McAllister and attorneys for the men again appeared before the state pardon board. Warden Sims of the prison probably will accept the court's decision, if it is unfavorable, as a stay of execution.

LOTS OF MONEY IN KANSAS
TOPEKA, Kan., July 29.—No, thanks! Kansas does not want any eastern money to move her crops. Not when the statement of the condition of state banks and trust companies on June 7 shows total deposits of $129,918,798.31, a gain of nearly $2,000,000 since February, a gain of $24,000,000 in the last year, and a new high record. The gain of $2,000,000 was a surprise as the deposits are at their lowest just before the wheat harvest.

this nature had often affected him,

Out of Sorts

THAT IS, something is wrong with baby, but we can't tell just what it is. All mothers recognize the term by the lassitude, weakness, loss of appetite, inclination to sleep, heavy breathing, and lack of interest shown by baby. These are the symptoms of sickness. It may be fever, congestion, worms, croup, diphtheria, or scarlatina. Do not lose a minute.
Give the child Castoria. It will start the digestive organs into operation, open the pores of the skin, carry off the foetid matter, and drive away the threatened sickness.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of

MATERIAL ON WAY FOR ROSE STREET NEW WHITE WAY

Cable and Posts for Lights
Enroute and Practically
All Money Necessary
Is RaisedMaterial for the "white way" on Rose street is on its way to La Crosse, according to information received today by those in charge of the projects. The cable, to be laid parallel to the street, was shipped last week from Milwaukee. The cross cables were laid before the new brick paving was finished. There is one cross cable in each of the two blocks of the white way. Practically 1,300 feet of cable is needed to connect the lamp posts, of which there will be eight in each block, four on each side of the street. The iron posts will support three light globes. One of the three lights on each post will burn throughout the night, the other two being turned off about midnight.The iron posts are scheduled to arrive about the first of the month.
Work of laying the cable and setting the posts will start as soon as they are received.Practically all the money needed to complete the lighting project has been subscribed. The estimated cost is $1,000, and the sum of $845 has already been collected and safely in the Exchange Bank with Cashier Robert Lowry.

Daddy's Bedtime

The Funny
Story—Dispute of the Little Garments.Along Came the Sandman."I THINK one of the funniest disputes I ever heard of," declared daddy, beginning his evening story for Jack and Evelyn ere they went to bed-die, "was the dispute of the little boy's clothes."Perhaps you will say that little boy's clothes can't talk, but every mamma who has to mend them knows well enough that they tell a story."Well, I think that this dispute must have occurred when the little boy was safely tucked away in his pajamas in bed. He was resting and dreaming.
How shall I tell what he dreamed?"Anyway, it must have been something pleasant, for the little boy smiled as he slept. And the little clothes dreamed, too, I think, as they lay on the chair near the little boy's bed. But a shaft of moonlight shone through the window upon the little clothes, and this must have awakened them."And no sooner were they awake than they fell to quarrelling and disputing about the use they were to the little boy and to the world."The little pants started it. Said the little pants: 'The rest of you are just ornamental, but that little boy has to have us. And he has to have more of us than of any of the rest of you. Every once in awhile his daddy or his mamma has to go to the store and buy a new pair of us. And his mamma has to patch us too. He's harder on us than he is on the rest of his clothes. We're most important, we are.'"Then up spoke the little shoes and said: 'Oh, what are you talking about, you little pants? We wear us out a lot quicker than he does you. Look at how strong we are, but in two weeks he has us looking like a pair of tramps.
Look at where he's stubbed us, and see where little holes have begun to come in our soles already. We shall have to pay a visit to the cobbler in a day or two. We love to visit the cobbler, we know him so well.'"You boast too much," spoke up the little shirt. 'You pants don't know the little boy's mamma, and you shoes don't know the cobbler half so well as I know the wash lady. Every week I go into that lovely tub of soapsuds, along with a lot of other little shirts, and I come out so spick and span. But he gets me soiled again very soon.'"So they fell to quarrelling, and along came the sandman again and said:
"Why, I thought I put you little fellows to sleep once, along with the little boy.
Now you go to sleep again, for you need rest. You have work to do to-morrow.""So they went to sleep again. And they had work to do the next day, all right."

ATTACKING ON BOTH FLANKS

A free university with university
extensions and continuation schools
means thousands of young progressive voters with each new generation
—a force which reaction is powerless
to check.

The reactionary faction in American politics may from time to time
seize upon transient issues as a means of temporarily regaining the power of office, but it can not hope to secure a permanent hold upon office unless it can stem the fountain of progressive inspiration.

That fountain is the educational system, and to check it there has been conceived the idea of central boards of education designed to measure learning in dollars and cents
and to subject research to the stalling
hand of reaction and dogmatism.

The forces at work for this end are immensely organized, skilled and resourceful. They aim no careless blow. They strike at fundamentals.

In Wisconsin the latest and most direct thrust has come from the reactionary members of the finance committee of the legislature. It is directed at the field work of university extension. It would so reduce the appropriation that either the central work or the field work must be dispensed with, and as without the central source no field work would be possible, it is the latter that must suffer.

Why this particular piece of "economy"?

Because it strikes at a vital spot
in the organization of our democracy
—as vital as that at which is aimed
the plan to take from the university

the independence provided by its modest three-eighths mill tax.

To fully understand the significance of this sinister move one must comprehend the theory upon which Dr. McCarthy and his associates worked out the university extension plan.

The university was made a great source of intellectual freedom. Research came to seek the truth. The printed word of past centuries lost its divinity, and inquiry and observation developed facts.

The problem was to get the facts
to the people, to educate true democracy into a nation. Many there who could come to the source. They took back the truth into the counties,
towns and villages, and by a gradual process the influence of their lives,
their examples and their teachings
was spreading the slow, sure truth.

But the process was too slow. Dr.
McCarthy wanted to take the truth directly to those who could not come to the source of learning. Where Mohammed could not go to the Mountain the Mountain would go to Mohammed.

And that idea was the foundation of university extension. There was the overhead distribution of the knowledge that makes free, through the students who came, studied and went their way. It was the rainfall of learning from the higher strata. In university extension came the under-spread of knowledge in a flood-rising from the lowest stratum capable of understanding. It spread and moved upward in far-reaching power, engulfing ignorance, buoying up democracy.

How plain is the program of the reactionaries! Control the source of learning and make it education of the few, for the few and by the few;
cut off entirely the under-tide of knowledge going directly to the masses.

This is the great coup that stand-pattism is attempting to "put over"
in the disguise of "democratic education."

Will they "get away with it?"

PENDANT PICTURE TELLS STORY

LONDON, July 29.—(By Mail)—
The tragic journey of a pendant,
containing a girl's picture and a lock of hair, from England to France and back again was told here today.

The day Private G. E. Milburn, a signaller in the Durhams, left his home for the front, Miss Bessie Grey, his sweetheart hung the pen-dant about his neck and kissed him goodbye. Milburn went into battle with the pendant still around his neck. He was killed and for many weeks, no letter came to the girl left behind.

Finally a large batch of dead soldier's effects were brought to En-dland and a London illustrated journal photographed many of them in an effort to trace the families of the fallen men. Miss Grey saw the photograph of the pendant she gave Private Milburn and claimed it.

ONE DEAD IN FIRE

SENECA FALLS, N. Y., July 29.—
One man was burned to death and six injured when the New Lux hotel at Waterloo, burned early today, with $50,000 loss. Police believe the fire was incendiary. Thomas Barron, manager of the hotel, was burned to death and his sister-in-law, Mrs.
Charles Barron, was so seriously cut and burned that she may not survive.

PRO-GERMAN IS SANE

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Frank
X. Weinscheck, formerly of Bellevue, Iowa, arrested some time ago by the secret service, on suspicion of insanity due to his pro-German activities,
was at liberty today, following the decision by alienists at St. Elizabeth's government hospital for the insane, that his mind is sound.

RAIN HITS PARTY

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 29.—
Stormy weather today compelled the Vanderbilt party, of which Andrew Carnegie is a member, to remain indoors. Yesterday, however, the Laird of Skibo played a round of golf and later enjoyed a motor trip,
returning just before dark.

There are just as good husbands
to be bought in the market as ever were sought for.

You Know
The bride was telephoning to her mother, "I wish you'd come over and see me this afternoon," she said.
"I'm awfully lonesome. John has gone on an outing with the men from his office."

"What sort of an outing?" asked her mother. "Is it a basket picnic?"
"No-o," replied her daughter. "As near as I could make out they're carrying most of the provisions in bottles."

Her View
"They've made a change in the time table on our road," said the commuter. "I can now leave the house fifteen minutes later than I used to and still get to the office in time."

"That gives you fifteen minutes
more sleep in the morning," remarked his friend.
"That's the way I figured it too,
but my wife says it will give me five minutes more to work in the garden."

Difference in Period
"The kind of books people read
nowadays is rather startling,"
"Yes," replied Mrs. McGudel, "but I have my doubts whether folks stop
dancin' long enough to read 'em.
When I was young we used to read books and pretend we didn't. Now people pretend they read 'em and don't."

"Quick" and "Dead"
"What little boy can tell me the difference between the 'quick' and the 'dead'?" asked the Sunday school teacher.
Willie waved his hand frantically.
"Well, Willie?"
"Please, ma'am, the 'quick' are

What He'd Do
A soldier on guard in South Carolina during the war was questioned
as to his knowledge of his duties.

"You know your duty here, do you,
sentinel?"
"Yes, sir."
"Well, now, suppose they should open on you with shells and musketry, what would you do?"
"Form a line, sir."
"What! One man form a line?"
"Yes, sir; form a bee line for camp, sir."

Rather Rough Sport
"Why are you moping there, Dick?"
"I've no one to play with."
"Well, go and fetch Freddie, next door."

"Oh, I played with him yesterday,
and I don't suppose he's well enough to come out yet."

What He Drooped
Hiram Jones had just returned from a personally conducted tour of Europe.

"I suppose," commented a friend,
"that when you were in England you did as the English do and dropped your 'his'?"
"No," moodily remarked the returned traveler; "I didn't. I did as the Americans do. I dropped the V's and X's."

Then he slowly meandered down to the bank to see if he couldn't get the mortgage extended.

She Was Skittish
The old lady from the country and her small son were driving to town
when a huge automobile bore down on them. The horse was badly frightened and began to prance, whereupon the old woman leaped down and waved wildly to the chauffeur, screaming at the top of her voice.

The chauffeur stopped the car and offered to help get the horse past.
"That's all right," said the boy,
who remained composedly in the carriage, "I can manage the horse. You just lead mother past."

OWN LIFE IN MOVIE

CHICAGO, July 29.—Mrs. I. L.
Rutman, 23, Tulsa, Okla., held here
for the Federal grand jury for violating the postal laws, today started on a movie play of her own experience, so others may be warned.

Mrs. Rutman collected $202.17
from a Tulsa bank belonging to Mary Kelly. This was Mrs. Rutman's maiden name, and she says she was notified by the bank the money was hers, so she sent for it and when another Mary Kelly called at the bank for the money Mrs. Rutman's arrest followed.

INSURANCE
A COMEDY ROMANCE
By Earl Derr Biggers
Author of Seven Keys To Baldpate.
Copyrighted The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

At a quarter before seven, for the first time, Minot entered Mr. Tom Stacy's Manhattan Club and Grill.
To any one who crossed Mr. Stacy's threshold with the expectation of immediately encountering lights and gaiety, the first view of the interior came as a distinct shock. The main dining-room of the Manhattan Club was dim with the holy dimness of a cathedral. Its lamps, hung high,
were buried in oriental trappings,
and shone half-heartedly. Faintly
through the gloom could be discerned white table-cloths, gleaming silver. The scene demanded hushed voices, noiseless footsteps. It got both.

The main dining-room was hol-
lowed out of the center of the great stone building, and its roof was off in the dark three stories above. On each side of the entrance, stairways
led to second and third-floor balconies which stretched around the room on three sides. From these balconies doors opened into innumerable rooms—rooms where lights shone brighter, and from which the chief of police, when he came to make certain financial arrangements with Mr. Stacy, heard frequently a gentle click-click.

It may have been that the furnishings of the main dining-room
and the balconies were there before Mr. Stacy's coming, or again they may have set forth his own idea of suitable decoration. Looking about him, Mr. Minot was reminded of a play like Sumurun after three hundred seasons on the road. Moth-eaten rugs and dusty tapestries hung everywhere. Here and there an atrocious cozy corner belied its name. Iron lamps gave parsimonious light.
Aged sofa-pillows lay limply.
"Oriental," Mr. Stacy would have called the effect. Here in this dim, but scarcely religious light, the patrons of his "grill" ate their food,
being without misgivings as they stared through the gloom at their plates.

The long tables for the Harrowby
dinner were already set, and about them hovered waiters of a color to match the room. Most of the guests had arrived. Mr. Paddock made it a point to introduce Mr. Minot at once to the Duchess of Lismore. This noble lady with the packing-house past was making a commendable effort to lighten the Manhattan Club by a wonderful display of jewels.

"Then felt I like some watcher of the skies, when a new planet swims into his ken," whispered Minot, as the duchess moved away.

Paddock laughed.
"A dowdy little woman by day,
but a pillar of fire by night," he agreed. "By the way, I'm foreman of her composing-room," beginning tomorrow."

"Be careful, Jack," Minot warned.
"A double life from now on."
Paddock replied, "but I think I can get away with it. Say, for ways that are dark this man Stacy seems to hold a better hand than the heathen Chinee."

In one corner the portly Spencer Meyrick was orating to a circle of young people on the evils of gambling. Minot turned away, smiling cynically. Meyrick, as everybody knew, had made a large part of his fortune in Wall Street.

The dinner was much larger than Mrs. Bruce's. Minot met a number of new people—the anemic husband of the jewels, snug in his dukedom,
and several very attractive girls thrilled at being present in Mr. Stacy's sinful lair. He bestowed a smile upon Aunt Mary, serene among the best people, and discussed with Mrs.
Bruce—who wasted no boughten wit
on him—the Florida climate. Also,
he asked the elder of the Omaha
girls if she had heard of Mr. Nat Goodwin's latest wife.

For once the dinner itself was a minor event. It sped rapidly there in the gloom, and few so much as listened to the flashes of Mrs. Bruce's wit—save perhaps the duchess, enviously. It was after the dinner, when Harrowby led his guests to the entertainment above, that interest grew tense.

No gloom in that bright room overhead. A cluster of electric lights shed their brilliance on Mr. Stacy's pet roulette tables, set amid parlor furnishings of atrocious plush. From one corner a faro lay-out that had once flourished on Fifty-eighth Street, New York, beckoned. And on each side, through open doors,

might be seen rooms furnished for the game of poker.

Mr. Stacy's assistant, a polished gentleman with a face like aged ivory, presided over the roulette table. He swung the wheel a few times, an inviting smile on his face.
Harrowby, his eyes bright, laid a sum of money beside a row of innocent figures. He won. He tried again, and won. Some of the young women pushed close to the table, visibly affected. Others pretended this sort of thing was an old story to them.

A few of the more adventurous
women borrowed coins from the men and joined in the play. Arguments and misunderstandings arose, which Mr. Stacy's assistant urbanely settled. More of the men—Paddock among them—laid money on the table.

A buzz of excited conversation,
punctuated now and then by a deathly silence as the wheel spun and the little ball hovered heart-breakingly, filled the room. Cheeks glowed red, eyes sparkled, the crush about the table increased. Spencer Meyrick himself risked from his endless store.
Mr. Tom Stacy's place was in full swing.

Dick Minot caught Cynthia Meyrick's glance as she stood close beside Lord Harrowby. She seemed another girl tonight, grave rather than gay, her great brown eyes apparently looking into the future, wondering, fearing. As for Harrowby, he was a man transformed. Not for nothing was he the son of the sporting Earl of Raybrook—the peer who never failed to take a risk. The excitement of the game was reflected in his tall tense figure, his flaming cheeks. This was the Harrowby who had made Jephson that gambling proposition on a seventeenth floor
in New York.

And Harrowby won consistently.
Won, until a fatal choice of numbers with an overwhelming stake
left him poor again, and he saw all his winnings swept to swell Tom Stacy's store. Quickly he wormed his way out of the crowd and sought Minot.

"May I see you a moment?" he asked. "Out here." And he led the way to the gloom of the balcony.

"If I only had the cash," Harrow-by whispered excitedly, "I could break Stacy tonight. And I'm going to get it. Will you give me the necklace, please?"
"You forget," Minot objected,
"that the necklace is supposed to have been stolen."
"No. No. That's no matter. I'll arrange that. Hurry—"

"You forget, too, that you told me
this morning that should this necklace be found now—"

"Mr. Minot—the necklace belongs to me. Will you kindly let me have it?"

"Certainly," said Minot coldly.
And, much annoyed, he returned to the room amid the buzz and the thrill of gambling.

UNIDENTIFIED BODY FROM EASTLAND NOT ALONE AT BURIAL

CHICAGO, July 29.—"The little feller" will not go to his grave alone.

"Number 396" is "the little feller." "396" is the body of an eight year old boy taken from the hull of the Eastland Saturday.

The stiffened form had lots of company at first. Then with rapid identifications the gruesome company at the army began to dwindle until today "396" was one of the four unidentified dead of all the 831 taken from the Eastland and the river.

Thousands have looked at the body. No one even recognized the pinched, blue face. When the body was recovered a two bladed knife was clutched in one hand. There were a few pennies in the pockets of the worn knickerbockers and a few trinkets like all boys carry about with them; but there was nothing by which to identify him.

The police guards at the army named him "the little feller." They took everyone who went to the army to see him. Today flowers by the bushel basketful began to arrive for "396." There were also numerous offers to give him proper burial.

But the authorities have decided to let a troop of Boy Scouts have that honor. "396" will be honored with all military honors.

"Somehow that seems to be the best way of all," said the grizzled old police sergeant. "I believe the little feller'll sleep better if he's tucked in by his own kind."

When a cheap man drops a penny in the contribution plate he figures on getting a through ticket to glory in exchange.

THROUGH MAJESTIC SCENERY TO CALIFORNIA

Nowhere will be found such a continuous panorama of stupendous mountain scenery as is presented successively by the towering mountain ranges along the cool northern route of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway to the Pacific North Coast.

From the time the train plunges into the American Rockies in Montana until it tunnels the snow-crowned heights of the Cascades in Washington, it is a trip of grandeur through a natural part of stupendous waterfalls, mysterious canyons and lands golden with grain and green with orchards.

If desired you can break the journey at Butte and make a side trip to the wonderland of Yellowstone.

Another diversion is to detain at St. Maries, Idaho, and take the "Trip of Shadows," a forty mile boat trip down the picturesque "Shadow" St. Joe River and Lake Coeur d'Alene to Spokane where the journey over the "Milwaukee" is again resumed. This is an exclusive feature of this route, and can be taken without extra cost.

Over this route there is operated daily two superb all-steel trains "The Olympian" and "The Columbian." They are the last word in luxury, comfort and personal service, and are the only all-steel trains operated to the Pacific North Coast.

From Seattle and Tacoma you can journey south to California over the scenic "Ranger-Shasta" Route and return home direct from either Los Angeles or San Francisco on the steel-equipped "Pacific Limited" over the central route of this company.

By making this "Grand Circle Tour" you will see the principal show places and the most of the wonderful resources of the great west at a moderate cost.

For information about low fares, time of trains and for descriptive western literature, apply to local agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway.

NORTH SIDE BAND TO GIVE CONCERT IN PARK TONIGHT

Second of Amateurs' Concert Series Will Be Held in Copeland Park

The north side military band will give the second of its series of open-air concerts at Copeland park tonight, if the weather is favorable.

The music is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock and continue until 9:30.

Three new musicians have been added to the membership roster of the organization, made possible because of the financial success attendant upon the ice cream social. Tracy Johnson, a member of the West Salem Military band, a bass horn player; Russell Anderson, clarinet, and Clifford Marking are the recent additions to the band.

A large number of people, from both the north and south sides, were disappointed because of the failure of the north side band to play at the ice cream social held at Copeland park last night by the women of the Caledonia Street Methodist church, according to schedule. It was said this morning by various members of the band that they knew nothing regarding the statement they were scheduled to play.

ONE YEAR OF THE GREAT WAR AS SEEN BY UNITED PRESS CORRESPONDENTS IN THE CAPITALS OF THE BELLIGERENTS

AS SEEN IN ENGLAND

by ED. L. KEEN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Fourth Story
LONDON, July 29.—"Are we down-hearted? No!"—with a heavy accent on the "no."

This is the slogan of British football fans in the bleachers (or the English equivalent thereof) when home team appears to be getting the worst of it. And the more precarious the situation the heavier the accent.

Since the failure of the Anglo-French spring offensive in Flanders, the disastrous defeats of the Russians, the news of the unsatisfactory progress of the Dardanelles campaign, the development of the Fisher-Churchill scandal, the French-Kitchener row, and the disclosures regarding Britain's woeful lack of the implements of warfare, culminating in the disruption of the cabinet, this attitude of the bleacherites has become the attitude of the British public.

And when the British public says it is not down-hearted it means it. Proof of this lies in the splendid fashion in which the workmen of the nation have answered the call for industrial reinforcements (bear in mind that 80 per cent of the British public consists of workmen, their women and children); also in the marvelous response to the prime minister's appeal for an adequate supply of silver bullets. Never in the history of any nation has a popular war loan met with such success.

For the apathy displayed by the masses in the first ten months of the war the British government has only itself to blame. The leaders of the nation made the mistake of trusting the entire conduct of the war on land to one man—perhaps a military genius, but with serious limitations on the human side, including an utter inability to understand the civilian temperament. For seven months the war was conducted in secret. Through the anonymous "Eyewitness" the public was fed with an occasional optimistic but colorless story from the front, the burden of which was that everything was going along splendidly, that the Germans were losing heart, that they had been compelled to put their old men and young boys in the firing line—and always conveying the impression that ultimate victory was a foregone conclusion. Not until March was a single newspaper correspondent permitted at the front, and even then they were not allowed to tell the whole truth.

Latent Spirit Evident
No wonder enlistments were slow. The fact that Lord Kitchener was able to enroll more than two million volunteers in this period is sure proof of the latent spirit of patriotism in the British public. But there was no enthusiasm, such as had been aroused in Germany by the first-hand stories from the trenches told by correspondents who were permitted to go practically wherever they chose and to write pretty much what they liked.

Lloyd George has told not only the workmen but the entire nation the truth. And the most striking illustration of the British workman's willingness to help the empire in its great need is the fact that, although it was Lloyd George himself who first accused him of slackness and drunkenness, the recruiting of his new munitions army started with an average enlistment of 10,000 per day.

This spirit of anti-down-heartedness is general in England today. The attitude of complacency on the part of the upper classes and of apathy among the lower classes has given way to one of united determination.

AS SEEN IN GERMANY

by CARL W. ACKERMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Fourth Story
BERLIN, July 29.—In the western campaign Germany met new conditions of modern warfare and overcame them before the enemies were able to do so. In the eastern war area old conditions of fighting prevailed throughout the twelve months, and Germany again has shown that she is as skillful with the old as with the new.

The more valuable territory which has fallen to German arms in this war is Belgium and northern France. These conquered districts are far more wealthy than are the captured Polish and Baltic areas. Yet, without doubt, the chief glories of the German armies have been won in the east. Germany is proud of the year's magnificent record in the west, but it is the march of events in the east that thrills the German people to their very souls. In popular imagination, the might of the Russian empire was the most disquieting fact of the war.

This belief was encouraged by the general feeling that if Germany were to hold her own in the great war, France must be overwhelmed before Russia's mighty millions could be mobilized. But Russia came on before France was overwhelmed. Germany had to meet her enemies on two fronts at once. The people of the empire trembled last summer as Russia's hordes crept further and further into East Prussia while the campaign against the western allies was yet to reach its height. Germany was not afraid of the western campaign, but the fact is privately confessed that the Germans did fear the outcome of the Slavonic rush.

Then, almost over night came the news that the battle of the Mazurian Lakes had been fought and had resulted in one of the greatest victories for Germany in all history. Seldom is a nation thrilled even in wartime as Germany was thrilled by the news that Marshal Von Hindenburg had cleared East Prussia of the invaders. Nothing that has happened since and nothing that is likely to happen will equal in Germany's estimation the brilliance of von Hindenburg's success. Until the Mazurian battle, Germany was not sure of herself. Von Hindenburg gave confidence to his country and demonstrated so absolute a superiority over the Russians that the fear of the Slavs vanished as light dispels the terrors of the dark. Von Hindenburg turned the light on the Russians and they are now the chief inspiration of the contributors to Germany's humorous weeklies.

Warsaw has not yet fallen, but instead the Germans have captured Russia's great Baltic port of Libau, which is second in importance only to Warsaw and Riga, as an eastern objective. The Baltic campaign ranks last in importance among the three great offensives which the Germans have successfully developed against the Slavs since last August.

The first of this is the advance across western Poland to the gates of Warsaw. Germany believes this drive alone, coming after the earlier retreat from Warsaw, is a greater success, judged purely as a military problem, than all the victories that the allies can claim.

Second in importance among successes against the Slavs is the freeing of Galicia. This campaign is ranked in Germany as an offensive one, differing from the rescue of East Prussia, which was a defensive thrust. The Galician province was almost entirely under Russian control when the Germans undertook to rescue it for Austro-Hungary.

The winning of Galicia has bound Austro-Hungary closer to the German empire, and has banished all hope among the allies of enticing Vienna or Buda Pest into making a separate peace.

Perhaps when the historians begin to write about the events of the past year, they will rank above everything else in importance, the influence which Germany's mighty victories in the east has had on the Balkan states. If the three southeastern neutrals had joined the allies earlier in the war, when Russia's strength was at its full, Germany doesn't like to think about the possible consequences.

(TOMORROW—GERMANY'S PRESENT ASSETS)

He had found the weak spots in the French war machine and knowing them, he could apply the remedy. He applied it and a number of officers were retired.

War caught Joffre in the middle of his reorganization. But he fought it out like a man until he won a breathing spell, then he dispassionately continued his merciless lopping off of official heads. His generals now average ten years younger than at the start and he has a tried man at every part of the line.

Joffre has accomplished all this in a year.

by WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS

Fourth Story
PARIS, July 29.—General Joffre must be enumerated among the great French successes of the first twelve months of the war.

This goes as it stands, whatever he may or may not do in the future. I say this because Joffre is not without his critics: There are those who say he ought to move faster.

Joffre already deserves the undying gratitude of his country if he never strikes another blow. He refused at Charleroi to sacrifice his men for a brilliant but temporary success though he must have known the country was waiting for him to make good; he ordered that soul-sickening retreat before a superior foe when he knew that every heart in France was weighted down by the doubt concerning him and his army; he patiently sought and seized the opportunity he was looking for, then instantly transformed the swift German advance on Paris into a disorderly retreat; he stopped short the mighty second German offensive in the west against the Channel ports and pinned his enemy down for a long winter trench campaign where he held the advantage; he won the confidence of his men, individually the most intelligent soldiers in the world, giving them reason for their cheerful courage which never faltered even on coldest, wettest mid-winter days.

Lastly, but by no means least, he so handled his resources in material and men that now, at the beginning of the second year of the war the French army is the finest fighting body in the melee. Joffre was the one man in France's forty million for the job.

At that, Joffre was an accident!

For some reason France had not seen fit to nominate a generalissimo, a commander-in-chief of her army, until just prior to the war. There was simply a board of generals and this board was supreme.

Maneuvers were conducted just as one would expect a board to conduct them. The Blue army, under one set of generals, would take such and such a position at such and such a time. The Red army, under another set of generals, would oppose the Blues and to do this they would hold such and such a line. The action would begin at a specified time, would take a specified form and cease at a pre-arranged hour, the Blues and Reds then to be occupying this or that position.

Suddenly all this was changed. Joffre came on the scene. The general unrest in Europe showed to France the unwisdom of letting this situation continue, and Joffre was named generalissimo of the army. How he came to be named is not clearly known; I have heard that General Pau was the first choice, but he, for reasons of his own, thought Joffre ought to be named. And Joffre it was.

Joffre was destined to have but one go at playing war before actual war began, but he changed the rules radically for this one. He gave the Blue army a city and its surrounding country to hold and he told the Red army to take it. He told them to go to it. All methods were good, there was no "time out" for anything and he hoped the best man would win.

There was the dickens to pay, of course. Easy-going officers were left far behind; incompetency developed in unlooked-for places; whole commands got captured, generals commanding, staffs and all. There were all sorts of mix-ups, but Joffre looked on and took in every detail. The newspapers hinted that the maneuvers were a fiasco and that the French army was in a bad way. But Joffre considered the war game the most successful he had ever witnessed.

He had found the weak spots in the French war machine and knowing them, he could apply the remedy. He applied it and a number of officers were retired.

War caught Joffre in the middle of his reorganization. But he fought it out like a man until he won a breathing spell, then he dispassionately continued his merciless lopping off of official heads. His generals now average ten years younger than at the start and he has a tried man at every part of the line.

Joffre has accomplished all this in a year.

Bridge Free For Visitors
Had toll been charged of the hundreds of Winonans who crossed the wagon bridge yesterday from Winona
where the Retail Grocers' Association of the Minnesota city was holding its annual picnic, the coffers
of the toll-keeper would have been filled to overflowing. Mayor Ben-ley followed the customary practice
of removing the toll on such occasions, as it would be practically impossible to handle the enormous traffic. The large crowd came to the city on the steamer G. W. Hill, which docked the excursionists at the head of the island.

Bridge Swings Often
Daily river reports point to a revival of river traffic. The Orion, formerly the old excursion and freight boat La Crosse, went up river at eight o'clock yesterday morning, while the Dixie and the showboat Wonderland went through the bridge a half hour later, enroute down stream. The self-propelled government barge Minneapolis towed
seven barges of coal up the river at 10:30 in the morning. The boat did not stop at the local harbor. The steamer Quincy went down with the current at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon on a regular trip.

BOARD OF TRADE PLANS EXCURSION TO TOMAH'S FAIR

In Meeting with Tomah Men Big Outing for "La Crosse Day" Is Set for September 3

WILL BE GOVERNOR'S DAY

Governor E. L. Philipp Is Expected at the Fair on Day Set for the Trip

The La Crosse board of trade will lead an excursion to Tomah for "La Crosse Day" at the Tomah fair, September 3. A special train, if proper arrangements can be concluded with the railroads, will carry the local business men to Tomah for the day.

In conference with Tomah business men at the La Crosse club yesterday evening, this was the decision reached by the excursion committee of the board of trade. The Tomah men informed the local board members that September 3 will be "Governor's day" as well as "La Crosse day." Governor E. L. Philipp is expected to attend the fair on that day.

The Tomah excursion met with the enthusiastic endorsement of the committee members. When ways and means for disposing of tickets were under discussion, John C. Burns stamped the meeting by ordering ten tickets on the spot. Others followed suit and ninety tickets were spoken for within a few minutes.

If the special train plan is carried out, it is planned to stop the train at West Salem to pick up inhabitants of those places who may be anxious to go to Tomah for the fair's big day.

HIRT CARTS OFF THIRD OF FIRM'S PROPERTY IN DRAY

Enters Publishing Company Office with Writ for Table and Takes Type and Press Parts

HIS PARTNER SEEKS WARRANT

Hirt Says He Was Denied Entrance to Building; McGaughren Has Sold to Fauteck

Joe Hirt, editor of "The Crooked Copper" and "The Investigator," whose partnership difficulties with Paul Fauteck have been engaging public attention since Hirt arrested Fauteck for alleged theft of private papers—a case which was later dismissed—added another chapter to the legal complications of his newspaper's affairs when he backed a dray up to the north side office of the firm and carted off what he today styled his third of the partnership's possessions. The "third" that Hirt took, he said today, included a bag of type—which he said he dumped from a form—parts of the press, a desk and two typewriters.

Fauteck seeks warrant.

Fauteck, who was present during Hirt's removal of his "third," yesterday afternoon visited District Attorney Otto Schlabach in an attempt to get a warrant for Hirt and J. C. Chalsma, constable, who led a party of five men that assisted Hirt up to 3 o'clock this afternoon the warrants had not been issued.

Incidentally, it became known today that William McGaughren, the third partner in the publishing company, yesterday sold his interest in the concern to Fauteck.

Yesterday's incidents, according to Hirt today, began when he was refused entrance to the building by Fauteck. He then secured from Judge C. W. Hunt a writ of replevin for a table in the office, which he claimed as his private property. With Chalsma, J. H. Schneller, Chalsma's deputy, and three other men, Hirt drove to the north side office.

Enter With Writ

They secured entrance by means of the writ, and while Chalsma was securing the table, Hirt says he dumped type from a form into a sack, took out screws from the press, and cut the drivebelt on the press. He said he was acting on advice of his attorney.

CO-OPERATION WITH ENGLAND HINTED AT IN WASHINGTON

Surprise Would Not Follow Enforced Peace in Mexico and End of "Starvation Blockade"

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 29.—If President Wilson should take steps to compel peace in Mexico and Great Britain should modify its "starvation blockade" of the German coast about the same time, it might be something more than a coincidence, close diplomatic observers of the international situation hinted today.

As matters stand, it was generally recognized the German American negotiations have come to a deadlock.

Officials said matters might remain as at present on into the indefinite future so long as no more Americans suffer from international attacks either on neutral or belligerent merchantmen in the European war zone. Such a state of affairs, however, was looked on as too precarious to last. To break the deadlock, it was agreed, every effort must be made.

There seemed to be only one way to do this—to induce Great Britain to call off its "starvation blockade" or to modify it at least.

One version, as already stated, was that the proposition would be included in the scheduled supplement to the recently received British answer to America's latest protest against the order in council. Another account was the supplement would simply amplify the original answer's defense of the order, but that the modification offer—conditioned on corresponding German modification of the kaiser's submarine methods—would come a little later.

England Concerned About Mexico

It was pointed out that England has been more than anxious, for a long time past, for better Mexican conditions and even leaving the Monroe doctrine out of consideration, is too busy in Europe at present to work for them.

Aside from general British property interests in Mexico, which, like those of every other nation with investments there, have suffered enormously by the prolonged chaos south of the Rio Grande, observers called attention to the fact that there has been increasing worry in British government circles recently concerning the safety of the country's Mexican oil holdings, on which it is largely dependent for petroleum and its products for war purposes.

If America guaranteed the safety of all these interests, the opinion was expressed that Downing street, London, would be willing to make corresponding concessions to the United States.

Work on Leelanaw Case

The state department was making a tentative draft today of a note asking Germany for damages for sinking the American steamship Leelanaw. Officials were convinced by the report from Consul Dennison, Dundee, Scotland, backed by the Leelanaw's captain's sworn statement that the German submarine commander observed all the rules of war except insofar as the ship's destruction was concerned and no doubt was felt that this could be settled amicably.

It was understood no formal diplomatic representations would be made concerning Harry L. Wilson, the American consular clerk in Berlin, under arrest on the nominal charge of trying to leave Germany without a passport but really, it was said, for aiding an Englishman to flee the country, by helping him to get a passport as an American.

Officials were hopeful that, as a courtesy, Germany would release him on condition that he quit the country immediately, but it was admitted that this would place the United States under an embarrassing obligation.

LIBERTY BELL CAN BE REPAIRED SAYS 'FRISCO ARTISAN

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 29.—The Liberty Bell may ring again as it did on July 4, 1776. The crack in the famous relic can be welded and the bell's former beautiful tone restored, according to Stuart Mutheon, an artisan of this city. Mayor Blankenburg of Philadelphia wrote to Mutheon in reply to his offer to repair the bell. The mayor's letter, made public today, stated that the Philadelphia board of public works is considering the offer.

WOMAN KILLED WHEN AUTO IS HIT BY TRAIN

Milwaukee Passenger Train Smashes Into Car on the Crossing Near Mauston Yesterday Afternoon

One person killed and another badly injured represents the toll of a crossing smash-up at 2:50 p. m. yesterday when Milwaukee passenger train No. 6 crashed into the touring car of Charles Davis of Lemonweir, Wis., killing Mrs. Frank Wilcox. Mrs. Davis sustained a broken leg and nose. The remainder of the party, Mr. Davis and his son, escaped injury by jumping from the machine.

Mrs. Wilcox was the mother of Mrs. Davis.

The accident happened one mile east of Mauston at the Milwaukee road crossing. Train No. 6 left La Crosse at 12:35.

an inspection service maintained by the federal government for the purpose of determining the stability of boats offered for passenger service. It is the judgment of this jury that the present method of determining the passenger carrying capacity of vessels is not founded on any proper basis.

"In recommending that Inspectors Reid and Eckloff be held to the grand jury, we recommend the possibility that the courts of Illinois may not have jurisdiction over them. Should the courts of Illinois not have jurisdiction, we recommend to the department of justice of the United States, that they undertake to mete justice to these parties."

Six Men Blamed

The men held by the coroner's jury which, throughout its verdict of manslaughter, emphasized that greed for gold was responsible for the disaster, are:

W. K. Greenebaum of the Indiana Transportation company, which chartered the Eastland from the owning St. Joseph-Chicago line.

Robert M. Reid, U. S. boat inspector, who granted the request of the steamboat officials to raise the passenger carrying capacity of the boat.

Henry Pederson, captain of the Eastland.

Joseph M. Erickson, chief engineer of the Eastland, and son-in-law of Inspector R. M. Reid.

C. C. Eckloff, United States boat inspector.

William H. Hull, vice president and general manager of the St. Joseph-Chicago line.

Inspectors Exempt

One fact that loomed up today to disturb officials investigating the disaster, was pointed out by Secretary Redfield. The cabinet member, with permission of State Attorney Hoyne, told the county grand jurors, he believed that have no authority to indict and that the state's attorney could not lawfully prosecute federal steamboat officials. He declared he has found they violated no federal statutes and consequently could not be blamed for obeying the rules and law under which they work.

President Wilson today was asked to appoint a special commission to probe the Eastland disaster and the history of all connections federal steamboat inspectors have had with the death ship since she first dipped her barrel-shaped hull in the Great Lakes.

A BROKEN LANCE

BY STELLA AVERY

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"Lorry blind?" Nancy's voice was horrified. "Not Lorry Graham?"

Edith Vantine nodded, all her gaiters sobered, by the terrible fact.
"Jim says the doctors thought they could save his sight, but the optic nerve is paralyzed. It's a good thing Lorry isn't poor."

Nancy Blake smiled wanly. What man could be poorer than Lorry
without the use of his eyes—those beautiful hazel eyes?

Blind—and all due to a quarrel with Frank Edgerton on the verge of the cliff at Roselea. Frank had pressed Lorry to the edge of the cliff, the earth had given away and young Graham
had fallen forty feet to the reach below. Frank had reeled home, still intoxicated, to give a garbled
account of the affair. He had disappeared for awhile, but now gossip
said he had returned to lay siege to Nancy's heart while Lorry Graham was blind?

No one, save those two, knew what the quarrel had been about. It was known that Frank Edgerton was in a drunken frenzy after the club dance; it was certain that the two had disagreed, to Lorry's defeat.

After Edith Vantine had imparted
the news to Nancy she moved along over the putting green. Nancy watched her with wide open, smarting eyes.

The golf links, the dazzling white of the clubhouse, the distant glimpse of the sound all blurred together in a flickering rainbow. How she missed Lorry's tall, white-clad figure swinging across the field, his deep voice, the fire in his glance when their eyes met!

And now that glance was dead—
forever.

With a choking sob Nancy brushed away the tears and swung a club to her shoulder. She grounded it clumsily as Frank Edgerton's voice sounded close beside her.

"Good morning, Nancy. Waiting for me?"

"No," said Nancy carelessly. "I'm just thinking."

"I have a penny to spare," he suggested.

"You may have my thought for nothing. I was thinking about Lorry Graham. They say he is blind."

Edgerton paled under his tan. He was a dark, lean-jawed man with onyx-black eyes and hair. His brown hands fumbled nervously with his clubs.

"His own fault," he muttered sulkily.

"What did you say?" asked Nancy.

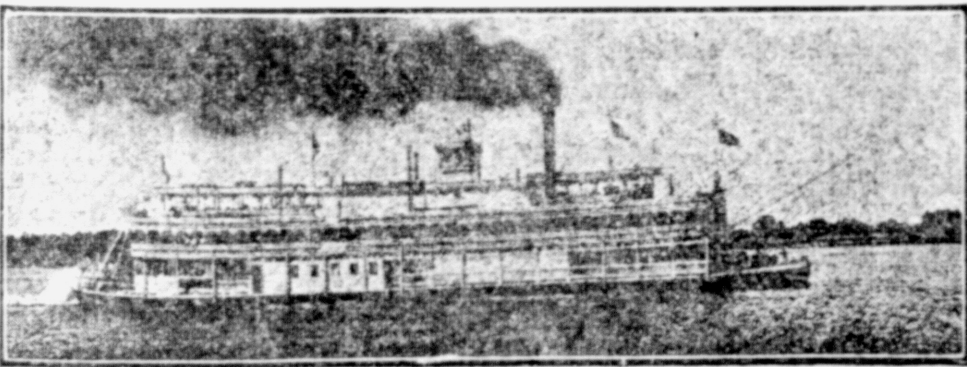

"His own fault," repeated Edgerton
in a blustering tone. "I warned him not to drink so much that night of the dance. Then when he tumbled over the cliff people said I quarreled with him and pushed him over!"

"What did you quarrel about?"
asked Nancy quickly.

"You!" he flashed back, and then

CONTRACT TO FORCE
BUILDING NEW BOAT
FOR FRONTENAC?

Lessees Required to Return
It in Seaworthy Shape but Sunken Vessel Thought Past Repair

Under a contract which requires them to return the steamer Frontenac in seaworthy condition, the managers of the barge Mississippi may be compelled to build practically a new vessel for the owners of the craft which sank in a storm at Winona early in June. Investigation of the Frontenac's hull has revealed that it is practically impossible to repair it. At the point of contact with the pier of the Burlington bridge at Winona the hull is said to be virtually "chewed up." Other jagged wounds mark the body's length.

Bulkheading of the sunken vessel has been completed, and the water is to be pumped out and the steamer raised for towing to shipyards at Rochester.

The engines and boilers were found to be in good condition, but rivemen at Winona express doubts
as to whether the boat can be put into serviceable shape without an expense greater than its value.

Call 388—Modern Steam Laundry

bit his lip with chagrin, and added
hastily. "That's just a joke, Nancy.
Believe me, we didn't quarrel about anyone. Graham simply staggered over the edge."

"Is that the truth, Frank Edgar-ton?" Nancy looked him full in the eyes.

"On my honor!" he declared

tragically, his glance shifting.

The girl laughed contemptuously.

"Don't swear by something you haven't got!" she retorted, and turned her back upon him. "I pity you!"

Edgerton stared at her red-coated back for some time. His face smarted in an ugly frown. Suddenly he smiled sardonically.

"They say pity is akin to—a tender feeling," he insinuated.

"It's sometimes close to contempt!" was Nancy's last retort, as she sauntered back to the clubhouse.

She sank down in a corner where a high-backed settee hid her from chatting groups of people. Voices reached her now and then. Once the clear tones of Mrs. Amory came to her, holding her captive in her seat,
an unwilling eavesdropper.

"Lorry Graham is not only blind,
but he is poor as well," said Mrs.
Amory. "It's hard luck!"

"Poor!" echoed a man's voice.

"What has happened to him?"

"I thought he was as safe as Gibraltar."

"My husband told me this morning that Lorry was bankrupt; that's all I know about it. Isn't it dreadful, on top of his blindness? Certainly, troubles never do come singly."

Nancy slipped out of the nearest door, her heart in a tumult. Lorry Graham not only blind, but poor as well!

She crossed the lawn and entered the woods beyond which lay the estate owned by the Grahams. If Mrs.
Amory spoke truly, the great landed property would go to strangers.

Nancy slipped through the hedge and entered the grounds. Under a wide-spreading maple she discovered Lorry reclining in a hammock chair and leaning over its back was his sister Mabel.

Mabel saw Nancy coming, put a finger to her lips and tiptoed away, meeting Nancy out of earshot of the man under the maple tree.

"Go to him, dear," whispered Mabel. "He's awfully down and he would rather see you than any one else."

Nancy squeezed Mabel's hand, and the latter went toward the house.

Nancy approached the lone figure
under the tree, her heart in a tumult
of fear and pity.

She had always liked Lorry—they had been firm friends, and there was even something more than ordinary friendship on the way when the quarrel on the cliff with its disastrous results came as a sinister interruption.

"That you, Mab?" asked Lorry's deep voice as she came up to the back of his chair. Before her voice was steady enough to risk an answer
he went on: "As I was telling you, Mab, Edgerton was drunk—plain drunk, and he made a sneering remark about Nancy. I resented it."

of course, and he threw himself
against me and bowled me over.
Rather humiliating when a chap was trying to break a lance for the lady of his heart!"

Nancy's hands slipped down until they covered Lorry's bandaged eyes.

"Who is it? Where is Mabel?" he demanded sharply.

"It is I—Nancy," she whispered
tremulously.

"Then you heard what I said—you know—"

"I know—everything, my brave
knight," quavered Nancy, kneeling beside him, not daring to lift her glance to the sightless eyes of the man she loved. "You were breaking a lance for me. Oh, Lorry, you can see—you are not blind at all!" she cried in a panic.

For when she stole a glance at him he snatched off the disfiguring bandage and his wide-open and lovelit eyes were beaming upon her with all their old-time adoration, only multiplied a hundredfold.

"Why, of course I can see," he laughed tenderly. "Who said I had gone blind?"

"Edith Vantine said—" Nancy's
voice turned traitor at this point.
She hid her crimsoned face against Lorry's broad shoulder and abandoned herself to a passion of tears.

"That was only silly gossip," he consoled. "I have had trouble with my eyes, but my sight has never been in danger. But even if I were blind, dearest, I think I could always see you—see your dear face just as it is fixed forever upon my memory."

It was Nancy who broke the blissful silence which followed.

"Is it true that you are quite poor
now, Lorry?" she asked falteringly.
"You know I have that legacy from Aunt Hester and perhaps you—"

"Dearest girl," he assured her passionately, "if I had nothing in the world but you I should still be the richest man on earth! However, I shall not need Aunt Hester's legacy."

THE GOOD JUDGE KNOWS WISE MEN CHANGE THEIR MINDS.

NO man is safe in saying he'll never switch on his chewing, till he's chewed the Real Tobacco Chew. Everyone knows that some tobaccos are better than others but no one knows how good tobacco really is till he chews "the little chew that satisfies."

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.

BERLIN
BERLIN, via Sayville, L. I., July 29.—A remarkable and successful raid by Austrian warships on the coast of Italy is reported by the Vienna official statement of last night. Great damage was inflicted along the line of the Adriatic railways, which follow the coast line closely, between Ancona and Pesaro.

The raid occurred Tuesday. A fleet of light cruisers and destroyers, evading all Italian craft, got within shelling distance of the railway and found the range of stations, bridges and locomotives. At Ancona a powder magazine was fired, causing a terrific explosion.

Airships shelled the station at a military barracks and military stores at Ancona. Flames from a naphtha tank that caught fire were visible thirty miles.

HE HAD SOME PRIDE

LONDON, July 30.—(By Mail.)—A suffragette recruiting agent on the Strand severely berated a stalwart young man because he had not joined the army. After accusing him of cowardice, she asked: "Have you no pride in your country?" Recovering from the shock, the S. Y. M. finally answered: "Yes, Madam, I have plenty of pride in my country. I'm going back next week. I'm an American." The suffragette apologized.

"GOOD ROADS" CRY ANSWERED; VIROQUA HITS ROCK TRAIL

More Roads Built and Repaired in Vicinity of Viroqua Since Spring Than for Ten Years Past

VIROQUA, Wis., July 29.—(Special.)—More roads have been built and repaired in the vicinity of Viroqua this year than for ten years past as a direct result of the "good roads" movement started recently.

Among the best roads in Vernon county are those situated between Viroqua and West Prairie. In the town of Franklin, beginning at the top of Morrison hill, a mile of well graded road has been built toward Liberty Pole. About the same amount of work has been accomplished at West Prairie and a great deal of repairing has been done between these points.

A road crew is working near Springfield at the present time, and County Engineer Ristow is directing crews in the towns of Christians, Wheatland, Greenwood and Harmony.

The town of Portland is forging to the front in securing and maintaining good highways. A new right-of-way has been laid out from the town hall to the Lutheran church on the main road to La Crosse. It was planned that two steep hills were eliminated.

The city of Richland Center has made great advances in the way of street and sewer improvements recently. Twelve blocks of macadamized street has been resurfaced and oiled and a mile and a half of sewer has been laid. Some of the low streets were graded.

Viroqua has witnessed considerable improvement in its streets recently. North Main street has been repaved and the council has voted to oil many of the more important streets.

"Whys" of Moves in European War

BY J. W. T. MASON
NEW YORK, July 29.—Revolts among the natives in the Hinterland of Tripoli have compelled the Italians to evacuate that part of their newly acquired colony. The general situation in Tripoli is causing uneasiness at Rome, and military operations against Austria, may have been hampered by detaching troops from the front for service in the Italian dependency.

Italy's war against Turkey for possession of Tripoli, three years ago, was a severe task for the Italian army at a time when it was free to devote all its energy to subduing the Mohammedans. If a general uprising were to take place at this time in Tripoli, Italy would be in danger of losing her colony which has cost the Italian nation so much blood and treasure. Such a catastrophe might easily lead to an anti-dynasty revolution at home which would mean a victory for Austria and part of Italy's northern provinces.

Turkey at present is debarrered from assisting in Tripoli revolutions, at least outwardly. Italy and Turkey are not at war and the Turks have formally recognized the cession of Tripoli to Italy. Nevertheless, the Tripolitans accept the sultan of Turkey as their spiritual head and it is probable secret emissaries of the sultan are at work in Tripoli fomenting dissatisfaction with Italy's rule.

The equivocal situation in Tripoli is the dominant reason why Italy has not more fully joined the allies and has refrained from declaring war against Turkey. The Turks are not using all their available military forces in the Gallipoli campaign because the limited area of operations makes this impossible. A strong force could be thrown into Tripoli if the opportunity presented; and the Turks would stand an excellent chance of recovering the lost province. To oppose the attack would require at least a complete readjustment of the Italian plan of campaign and probably a change from the offensive to the defense against Austria. If the Tripolitans continue to develop a spirit of revolt, Turkey herself may in fact, declare war against Italy and risk the possibility of winning back the colony. Probably lack of ammunition in Turkey is the chief reason why the policy has not been adopted before now.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

U. S. KEEPS COUNT OF PASSENGERS ON RIVER STEAMERS

Excursionists Counted to See That No Boat Carries More Than the Limit

NOT LIKELY TO CAPSIZE

Collector of Port J. S. Medary Says Danger on the River Boats Is More from Fire

Carrying Capacity of River Boats
W. W. and barge 900
Sidney 2,000
G. W. Hill 1,529
Mississippi barge 1,500

No boat is allowed to leave the La Crosse levee with more than the complement of passengers fixed for her by the government inspection. Every Sunday and holiday crowd is checked as it goes aboard the boat by Collector of the Port J. S. Medary, and every week-day excursion which gives evidence that it may approach the carrying capacity of the vessel is carefully counted.

This federal supervision of river excursions became known today when Collector Medary was asked about the possibility of an accident on the Mississippi similar to that which rolled the steamer Eastland over in the Chicago river and drowned more than 1,200 pleasure-seekers.

The chances of capsizing are not great with river steamers, Mr. Medary declared. Although of small draft—the largest draw scarcely three feet—river boats are almost flat-bottomed, and hard to turn over, Mr. Medary said. He admitted, however, that their light draft made them tend toward instability in high winds. For this reason, he said, it is the custom with river captains to tie up when a heavy blow approaches.

Rumors that a certain excursion boat traveling out of La Crosse had been condemned as unstable and was not allowed to carry passengers except with a barge lashed to her side, were neither confirmed nor denied by Collector Medary. "I have heard the rumors," he said, "but I know nothing about their truth. The inspection is in the hands of a firm of engineers in Dubuque, and I receive only their formal reports to guide me. The boat which you mention was overhauled and given a license this year."

The chances of disaster to a river boat are greater from fire than any other cause, Mr. Medary believes.

"River steamers are entirely constructed of wood," he explained. "They have high, airy superstructures all of timber, which would go like tinder were they once to get well afire."

Mr. Medary recalled the J. S. disaster, in which one life was lost, the rest of the passengers escaping from the blazing steamer when the captain drove her nose into a wood bank and allowed them to jump off into the shallow water or upon land.

Not an excursion out of La Crosse this year has carried as many passengers as its license allowed, Mr. Medary said. Bad weather and adverse conditions had combined, he said, to keep the crowds small. Most of the boats have not exceeded half of their legal capacity on any trip, the collector declared.
